Owing to the fact that epitaphs are entirely inadequate to express bereavement at the death of a relative or friend, the prevailing style of inscriptions is one of marked brevity. We give, on the following page, a few examples of inscriptions, which, though brief, are complete, and will serve to show the most popular mode of lettering a monument at the present time. The words "Born" and "Died" are often omitted, being superfluous.

However, as it is often difficult, just at the time required, to procure suitable inscriptions, we give herein, to those who may desire them, a large and choice collection, to which we have devoted a great deal of time, care, and attention.

CHILDREN OF
J. & S. H. TAYLOR
FOR CHILDREN.

1 Gone to soon.
2 Our loved one.
3 Only sleeping.
4 Gone to be an angel.
5 Gone to a better land.
6 Darling, we miss thee.
7 The lovely flower has faded.
8 "Blessed are the early dead."
9 "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."
10 "He carries the lambs in his bosom."
11 "Suffer little children to come unto me."
12 Earth's brightest gems are fading;
13 Alas! the fairest fade early.
14 These whom God loves die young.
15 In heaven there is one angel more.
16 Of flowes't soon faded.
17 Asleep in Jesus, blessed thought.
18 A fitter bud of promise never bloomed.
19 A sunbeam from the world has vanished.
20 Budded on earth to bloom in heaven,
21 How soon fades the tender flower.
22 Homeward to the realms of the pure.
23 Another sweet flower blossoms in the dews of heaven.
24 Our short-lived flower returned again to God.
25 Another little angel.
26 A little line on earth he spent,
27 Happy mind, early blest,
28 And thou, that brighter home to bless,
29 Favored of heaven, to wear the crown
30 Without life's weary race to run.
31 How happy thus to sink to rest,
32 So early numbered with the blest.
33 He took thee from a world of care,
34 An everlasting bliss to share.
35 God blesses in an early death,
36 And takes the infant unto himself.
37 Whose all of life's a rose may,
38 Blushed little dawn and passed away.
39 A little bud of love
40 To bloom with God above.
41 He whose love exceedeth ours
42 Hath taken home our child.
43 Sweet flower, transplanted to a clime
44 Where ne'er comes the blight of time.
45 How much of light, how much of joy
46 Is buried with a darling boy.
47 Here rests the sweetest bud of hope
48 That ever to human wish was given.
49 Sweet babe, thy spirit now hast rested,
50 Thy sufferings now are over.
51 Another gem's in the Savior's crown,
52 Another soul's in heaven.
53 We can safely leave our boy,
54 Our darling in Thy care.
55 Alas! how changed that lovely flower,
56 Which bloomed and cheered my heart.
57 'T was but a flower too good for earth,
58 Transplanted into heaven.
59 The fairest bud that flowery nature knows,
60 Oh ne'er unfolds, but winters ere it blows.
61 Sleep on, sweet babe, and take thy rest,
62 God called thee home. He thought it best.
63 The lads so late our darling theme,
64 Now slumbers in the tomb.
47 Our darling one hath gone before,
To greet us on the blissful shore.
48 Heaven benignly called thee hence
In all its pure, sweet innocence.
49 Gone to bloom in the garden of heaven,
To dwell with the happy and blest.
50 Short pain, short grief, dear babe were thine;
Now, joys eternal and divine.
51 Gone like a flower of the blooming June,
Fading in a day.
52 Faded from this world ere we could gain
Or sorrow blight the opening flower.
53 Weep not, father and mother, for me,
For I am waiting in glory for thee.
54 An angel visited the green earth,
And took the flower array.
55 The self same hand from whence 't was given
Has taken back our babe to heaven.
56 The same hand that from a world of care
The bliss of heaven to share.
57 'Tis a little grave, but oh! how rare,
For world-wide hopes are buried there.
58 Rest, little one, a mother's tears may fall,
But not for world, would she her child recall.
59 Deem not this blossom prematurely plucked,
No flower can drop too soon if ripe for glory.
60 Lord, teach me to grieve back to Thee
The treasure Thou didst lend to me.
61 'Tis the Lord who hath bereft us
Of the one we loved so well.
62 Born by angels' hands away
To a home of peace and love.
63 The fairest flower we fondly love,
How soon it fades and dies!
64 Beautiful, lovely,
She was but given,
A fair bud to earth,
To blossom in heaven.

65 A little flower of love
That blossomed but to die;
Transplanted now above,
To bloom with God so high.
66 To you the child was only bent,
While mortal it was thine;
The child, tho' dead, is yet alive
And lives forever blest.
67 'Tis Jesus speaks: "I told," says He,
"This lamb within my breast,
Protection it shall find in me,
In me be ever blest!"
68 There art gone, little darling,
Sweet child of our love.
From earth's fairy strand
To bright mansions above.
69 We loved this little tender one,
And would have wished her stay;
But let our Father will be done—
She shines in endless day.
70 Tread softly, for an angel hand
Hath guarded the silent bent.
And we can safely leave our boy.
Our darling, in their trust.
71 Eye seeing could delight, or sorrow fade;
Death came with friendly care.
The opening had no heaven conveyed,
And bade it blossom there.
72 Beneath this stone, in safe repose,
Is laid a mother's dearest prize,
A flower that scarce had waked to life,
And light and beauty, ere it died.
73 Eye sorrow had tainted
Its innocent love;
Its spirit was sustained
By angels above.
74 Gone to a fairer land
Of pleasure and love,
To join the bright band
Of angels above.
MISCELLANEOUS.

75 Rest.
76 At rest.
77 In heaven.
78 Gone home.
79 All is well.
80 "Come to Me."
81 My trust is in God.
82 Forever with the Lord.
83 They are not dead.
84 Death is another life.
85 We will meet again.
86 Absent, not dead.
87 Gone, but not forgotten.
88 In after-time we'll meet her.
89 Christ is my hope.
90 To die is gain.
91 God defends the right.
92 May he rest in peace.
93 Weep not; he is at rest.
94 He has gone to the mansions of rest.
95 There is rest in heaven.
96 With Christ in heaven.
97 Death wears a smiling mask.
98 His name is on high.
99 Thy lost yet sight, to memory dear.
100 Death is the crown of life.
101 Not lost, but gone before.
102 Asleep in Jesus.
103 Beloved one, farewell.

104 Her end was peace.
105 Meet me in heaven.
106 His memory is blessed.
107 The cross is my anchor.
108 Resting till the resurrection morn.
109 Thy God has claimed thee as His own.
110 Prepare to meet me in heaven.
111 Earth's brightest gems are fading.
112 He is not dead, but sleepeth.
113 The angels call him.
114 Dying is but going home.
115 He is at rest in heaven.
116 None knew thee but to love thee.
117 She was the sunshine of our home.
118 What hopes have perished with you, my son.
119 Death, thou art infinite;—it is life is little.
120 She believed, and sleeps in Jesus.
121 Virtue is the only nobility.
122 Thy trials ended, thy rest is won.
123 Resting in hope of a glorious resurrection.
124 How desolate our home, bereft of thee.
125 Jesus loves the pure and holy.
126 There are no partings in heaven.
127 The faithful are certain of their reward.
128 Salvation through Christ the Redeemer.
129 How many hopes he buried there.
130 He died as he lived—a Christian.
131 The briefer life, the earlier immortality.
132 Let our Father's will be done.
133 In Thee, O Lord, have I put my trust.
134 Ascend, my soul, thy Father's kingdom share.
135 He was beloved by God and man.
136 May be find joy in the life everlasting.
137 Oppressed by grief, yet chearful by faith and hope;
138 Sheltered and safe from sorrow.
139 Thy life was heavenly, true, goodness, and love.
140 Death’s a portal into bliss.
141 We mourn that joy and suffer real woe.
142 With life and name sustained, the good man dies.
143 Death is eternal life, why should we weep?
144 Beloved, thou art admired wherever known.
145 An honest man’s the noblest work of God.
146 The paths of glory lead but to the grave.
147 A tender mother and a faithful friend.
148 There is glory for the virtuous when they die.
149 All things to the glory of God.
150 “Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints.”
151 Holy Bible, book divine.
152 Precious treasure, thou art mine!
153 To forget is vain endeavor;
Love’s remembrance lasts forever.
154 We trust our loss will be her gain,
And that with Christ she’s gone to reign.
155 Far off thou art, but ever near; I have thee still,
And I rejoice.
156 He said—thy power upholds the sky—
Believ'rye shall never die.
157 Who brought me hither
Will bring me hence; no other guide I seek.
158 The best, the dearest favorite of the sky,
Most taste that cup; for man is born to die.
159 They stream their course to the same quiet shore,
Not parted long, and now to part no more.
160 Part that well, and may the indulgent God grant
They may wish.
161 The rose may fade, the lily die,
But flowers immortal bloom on high.
162 She suffered by the wayside,
And the angels took her home.
163 This is but the nestles by her,
The rug that first he spankles yet.
164 Father! let thy grace be given,
That we may meet in heaven.
165 Faithful is her trust,
Ere unto death.
166 Yet when the body and the soul are dust,
Still—still survives the memory of the just.
167 Kindred to be gnea, 0 mystery, why?
Death is but life, weep not now sigh.
168 These immortal spirits reign,
There we shall meet again.
169 Sleep, sleep at last! thy sleep shall be
Thy rest, thy strength, thy victory.
170 Gone to a bright home,
Where grief can not come.
171 Here is one who is sleeping; in faith and love,
With hope that is treasured in heaven above.
172 Be then my guide, my strength,
My wisdom and my all.
173 Such a heavenly happy dwell in thy breast,
Such a world of bright thoughts in thy soul.
174 A kind wife mourns in thee a husband lost,
The poor, a friend who left what friendship cost.
175 Now thou art gone beyond the reach of we,
Where sorrow’s tears shall ever cease to flow.
176 No ejection marred his tranquil way;
His only fault discharges without display.
177 Kind father of love, thou art gone to thy rest,
Farewell to earth; 0 bid the joys of the blest.
178 We’ll join thee in that heavenly land.
No more to take the parting hand.
May the Lord grant joy in the life everlasting.

Oppressed by grief, yet cherish'd by faith and hope.

Sheltered and safe from sorrow.

Thy life was beauty, truth, goodness, and love.

Death is a portal into bliss.

We pursue false joy and suffer real woe.

With life and name combined, the good man dies.

Death is eternal life, why should we weep?

Beloved, then well admired wherever known.

An honest man is the noblest work of God.

The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

A tender mother and a faithful friend.

There is glory for the sinner when they die.

All things to the glory of God.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints."

Holy Bible, book divine.

Precious treasure, thou art mine.

To forget is vain endeavor.

Love's remembrance lasts forever.

We trust our loss will be her gain,

And that with Christ she's gone to reign.

"For ever thou art, but ever nigh;
I have thee still, and I choose!"

He said—whose power upholds the sky—
Believing, ye shall never die.

Who brought me hither
Will bring me hence; no other guide I seek.

The best, the dearest favorite of the sky,
Must taste that cup; for man is born to die.

They stay'd there; these came to the same quiet shore,
Not parted long, and now to part no more.

Purse thee well! and may the illustrious God grant thee thy wish.

The rose may fade, the lily die,
But beauty Immortal bloom as high.

She suffered by the way-side,
And the angel took her home.

'Tis but the casket to his heart,
The gem that stilled its splendour yet.

Father! let thy grace be given,
That we may meet in heaven.

Faithful to her trust,
Even unto death.

Yet when the body and the soul are dead,
Still—still survives their memory of the just.

Long will posterity his virtues own,
When blank or broken is this pillar'd stone.

Kindled to begin, O mystery, why?
Death is but life, weep not nor sigh.

There immortal spirits reign,
There we shall meet again.

Sleep, sleep at last! thy rest shall be
Till rest, till strength, till victory.

Gone to a bright home,
Where grief can never come.

Here is one who is sleeping in faith and love.
With hope that is treasured in heaven above.

Be Thou my guide, my strength,
My wisdom and my all.

Such a heavenly beauty dwells in thy breast,
Such a world of bright thoughts in thy soul.

A kind woman in thee a husband lost.
The poor, a friend who felt what friendship cost.

Now thou art gone beyond the reach of care.
Where sorrows' tears shall ever come to flow.

No overgrown morn marks his tranquil way.
His state is disbanded without display.

Kind father of love, thou art gone to thy rest.
Forever to bask, and the joys of the blest.

We will join thee in that heavenly land,
No more to take the parting hand.
The sweetest reward we receive at last,
In consciousness of virtuous actions past.

Now his labor's done!
Now, now the goal is won.

No fear, no woe shall dim that hour
That manifests the Saviour's power.

In Paradise thou shalt rest
Deer to be found in a world like this.

In that bright, immortal shore
We shall meet to part no more.

No pains, no griefs, no anxious fear
Can reach our loved one sleeping there.

Asleep in Jesus! peaceable rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest.

She was too good, too gentle and fair,
To dwell in this cold world of care.

Earth contains a mortal less,
Heaven an angel more.

Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep.

Gone in her young years,
Away from life's cares.

"Tis not the whole of life to live,
Nor all of death to die.

"God gave—He took—He will restore;
He doth all things well."

Crowned with mercy, O how sweet!
Will eternal friendship be?

From love's shining circle
The gems drop away.

Of our whole world of love and song
They want the only light.

"O death! where is thy sting?
O grave! where is thy victory?"

"Oh, who would wish to live but he who fears to die."

Let our Father's will be done,
She shines in endless day.

Here I lay my burden down,
Change the cross into the crown.

"Twas hard to give thee up,
But Thy will, O God, be done.

O, 'twill be sweet to meet on that blest shore,
All sorrow passed, all pain forever o'er.

Go and dwell with him above,
Happy in the Saviour's love.

To him, we trust, a place is given,
Among the saints with Christ in heaven.

Death's but a path that must be trod,
If man would ever pass to God.

Is not even death a gain to those Whose life to God was given?

When mourning for companions gone,
We doubt not they live themselves alone.

The dead in Christ are truly blest,
For they partake His heavenly rest.

Dear parents, tho' we miss you much,
We know you rest with God.

She was a tender mother here,
And in her life the Lord did fear.

Death may the bands of life unloose,
But can't dissolve my love.

Having finished life's duty,
She now sweetly rests.

Gone like the sweet flower,
Neath death's fearful power.

The sceptre round the shining throne
Have borne thee to thy rest.
217 A happier lot than ours and larger light surrounds
that there.
218 She lies gone to the land where the weary
Enjoy the sweet repose of sacred repose.
219 Farewell, my wife and children all,
From you a father Christ doth call.
220 She has gone to her home in heaven,
And all her sorrows are o'er.
221 Through the Lord's unbounded love
We'll meet again in realms above.
222 Now not a sultry breath can rise
To dim thy glory in the skies.
223 Our brother's best, who is at rest
With Christ forever more.
224 Jesus has come and borne thee home,
Beyond the stormy blast.
225 The heart's keen anguish only those can tell
Who've bid the dearest and best farewell.
226 Upright and just he was in all his ways,
A bright example in degenerate days.
227 To live in hearts we leave behind
Is but to die.
228 Of man, immortal by a double prize,
By faith on earth, by glory in the skies.
229 Death wings triumphant o'er mankind;
Hope shines the soul eternal back to God.
230 His soul renewed by early grace
In heaven has sought its native place.
231 It was hard, indeed, at part with thee,
But Christ's strong arm supported me.
232 All things that we love and cherish,
Like ourselves, must fade and perish.
233 His toil is past, his work is done,
He fought the fight—the victory won.
234 "Twill accompany the ways of earth
To think we'll dwell with her in heaven.
235 Here, shielded with many a sweet and thought,
That loved one's memory lingers still.
236 Why should we mourn our brother's loss,
Since death to him is bliss?
237 She's passed beyond all earthly woes—
She smiles in a sunnier sphere.
238 Hope once bright are now departed,
Since mother's numbered among the dead.
239 He whose home is not on earth,
But rises from his earthly bed.
240 Still, till to thee, where'er thy footsteps roam,
My heart shall paint and lead the wanderer home.
241 Each of us hopes to join you at last
On the beautiful heavenly shore.
242 "Tis not the Inifini, but the house destroy'd,
Man's spirit is with weight of death alloy'd.
243 His words were kindness, his deeds were love,
His spirit humble, he reaps above.
244 So his spirit hath flown from this world of unrest
To repose on the bosom of God.
245 She saw the lifelong cherished hopes fulfilled,
And caught the wakeful of a Saviour's love.
246 Through all thy budding hopes were not blown,
Betrayed, thou art admired wherever known.
247 Prophecies hope dispelled death's frightful gloom;
Celestial rays redeemed her dying sight.
248 In life she exhibited all the graces of a Christian;
In death her spirit returned to God, who gave it.
249 At last we learned submission to our lot,
And though we less deplored her, we forgot.
250 They who knew her best will bless her name
And keep his memory dear while life shall last.
251 Her spirit smiles from that bright shore,
And softly whispers, "Weep no more!".
252 Living, he made the poor man's heart be glad,
And at his death the sorrowing ones were sad.
253 Good omen crown themselves with lasting bays;
Who doeth well, needs not another's praise.
254 Lament may flourish 'round the conqueror's tomb,
But happy they who win the world to come.
251 Death is the spirit's bitter blast.
The dawn of perfect day.
256 Could she too soon escape this world of pain,
Or could eternal life too soon begin?
257 Complain not that the way is long;
What road is weary that leads there?
258 One by one life robs us of our treasures;
Nothing is our own except our dead.
259 Oh! for the touch of a cushioned hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still.
260 Though our loss is great, we trust
'Tis your eternal gain.
261 When we our pilgrim's path have trod,
Oh! may we find him with our God!
262 We knew no sorrow—knew not grief—
Till thy bright face was removed.
263 Though grief it gives, 'tis much the best,
To say 'Thy will be done.'
264 May the resurrection find thee
On the bosom of thy God!
265 Thy memory shall ever be
A guiding star to heaven.
266 Though thou art gone,
Fond memory clings to thee.
267 How soon, alas! our brightest prospects fail,
As Autumn's leaves before the driving gale.
268 Yet, why should we repine,
When death a better life hath given?
269 Secure in thy Redeemer's breast,
Thee 'll reign for evermore.
270 Alas! how sad to part with thee,
Friend of my better days?
271 Can I forget the agonizing hour
When those fond eyes were closed to see no more?
272 None knew thee but to love thee,
None mourned thee but to praise.
273 Though thy heart and flesh may fail,
Cast thy hopes above!
274 Every joy to us is dead,
Since mother is not here.
275 'Tis finished, the contest is past,
The heaven-born spirit is fled.
276 He was a man among the few,
Shining on virtue's side.
277 Our father has gone to a mansion of rest,
To the glorious land by the Deity blest.
278 Thy guardian spirit now may guide,
And o'er thy wayward path preside.
279 Gone in life's bright morn!
Gone in her youthful bloom!
280 She has reached that haven of the blest,
And realized immortal joy.
281 The jewelled death has robbed us of
We will find on the other side.
282 Passed through the golden gate
Into the celestial shining land.
283 Honored, beloved, and wept,
Here mother lies.
284 Just in the morning of his day,
In youth and love, he died.
285 God took thee in His mercy,
And thee with immortality.
286 Early placed in early blue,
An early death-bed is an early crown.
287 Oh! how happy is the thought
That God will call him home.
288 Heaven again its gate has opened
To receive a soul so bright.
289 Just when we learned to love her most,
'Gost called her back to heaven.
290 Do not till to-morrow to be wise,
Tomorrow's sun to thee may never rise.
291 Think what a present thou to God hast sent;
And render Him with patience what He lent.
292 Life's latest struggle cheerfully he passed,
Unwearied still, undaunted to the last!
203 'Mid toil and peril be life's journey trod,
Yet walked securely, for he walked with God.
204 Heaven lifts its everlasting portals high,
And bids the pure in heart behold their God.
205 Death was the gate through which to life he passed,
To feast on joys that will forever last.
206 "They shall be mine, saith the Lord of Hosts,
In that day when I make up my jewels."
207 "Who plucked that flower?"
"The Master!"
The gardener held his peace.
208 The sweet remembrances of the just
Shall flourish when they sleep in dust.
209 Our mother!
In God's own hour her orb will rise,
Once more a star of Paradise.
210 The circle is broken—one seat is forsaken,
One bud from the tree of our friendship is shaken.
211 To a glad dream of slumber, which wakes in bliss,
She hath passed to the world of the holy from this.
212 As a wife, devout;
As a mother, affectionate;
As a friend, ever kind and true.
213 Gone to inhabit fairer climes,
Where streams of bliss fresh issue from the throne.
214 As a star that is lost when the daylight is given,
She hath faded away to shine brightly in heaven.
215 She welcomed death, not only as a release from bodily suffering, but as the fruition of her hopes of eternal happiness.
216 Death will give back what neither time nor might,
Nor passionate prayer, nor longing hope restore.
217 It was sweet to listen to the words that flowed From thy dear lips, alas! now sealed in death.
218 A mother's feeling in thy bosom glow'd,
Which heaved in kindness with each gentle breath.
219 Blessed are the dead who in the Saviour died;
From all life's labours they shall rest on high.

310 Thus seek to rest the just whom Christ has blest,
Death brings them light and peace and heavenly rest.
311 Cheerful be his going up—and went,
To share the holy rest that waits a life well spent.
312 Rest in peace, thou gentle spirit,
Thronged above;
Souls like thine with God inherit
Life and love.
313 Another link is broken
In our household band,
But a chain is forming
In a better land.
314 Not lost, but sleep thought,
Not gone before,
Where we shall meet
To part no more.
315 Gone in her young years,
Ere sorrow could stain;
After from life's cares,
Its grief and its pain.
316 Affection's tribute here I raise,
'How is all that I can do,
Till death shall close my earthly days,
Our friendship to renew.'
317 Why should we start and fear to die?
What timorous worms we mortals are!
Death is the gate of endless joy.
And yet we dread to enter there.
318 How solemn are the words!
And yet to faith how plain,
Which Jesus uttered while on earth,
"Ye must be born again."
319 Fold her, O Father! in thine arms,
And let her henceforth be
A messenger of love between
Our human hearts and Thee.
320 Closest are thy sweet eyes
From this world of pain,
But we trust in God
To meet thee again.
321 Soon shall we meet again—
Meet never to sever;
Soon will peace wreath her chains
Round us forever.

322 Thy virtue and thy worth
Shall food remembrance cheer,
And ease the ailing heart
That drops the falling tear.

323 Just as the morning of her life
Was opening into day,
Her young and lovely spirit passed
From earth and grief away.

324 The eternal Judge of all the earth
Is just in all His ways,
Alike in those which give us birth
And those which end our days.

325 Alas! the fairest face only,
And those whom we cherish and love,
Too rare for angels that are earthly,
Are conveyed by angels above.

326 We shall meet again, sweet mother,
In a brighter home than this,
Where the anguishes of this world of ours
Is lost in deathless bliss.

327 Here lies one who in this life
Was a kind mother, a true wife;
She was by many virtues best,
And prouder among the best.

328 Mother, thou art not at home,
Among angels fair above,
But yet below thy child must roam,
Till reunit with Him in love.

329 Mother, thou art not at home
To the regions far above;
We to thee ever this stanch,
Consumed by our love.

330 O Thou who driest the mourner’s tear,
How dark this world would be,
Did we not know our father dear
Was only called to Thee.

331 All the plans of life are broken,
All the hopes of life are fed—
Comfort, comfort, and advise;
Alas! alas! for thou art dead.

332 An amiable father here lies at rest
As ever God with His angels blest;
The friend of man, the friend of truth,
The friend of age, the guide of youth.

333 Thy form alone is all, thank God,
That to the grave is given,
For we know thy soul, the better part,
Is safe, yes, safe in heaven.

334 Dearest brother, thou hast left us,
Here, thy loss we deeply feel,
But He is God that hath bereft us,
He can all our sorrows heal.

335 This tablet to a brother’s love
Is reared by kindred left;
His soul in bliss is now above,
His friends on earth bereft.

336 Gone before us, o our brother,
To the spirit land!
Valiant host we for another
In thy place to stand.

337 The holy dead! the blest we are,
That we may name them so,
And to their spirits look after,
Through all our woes.

338 He took the cup of life to sip—
So bitter it was to drain,
He weekly put it from his lips,
And went to sleep again.

339 Remember, friends, as you pass by,
That all mankind are born to die;
Then let your cares on Christ be cast,
That you may dwell with Him at last.

340 My own dear wife has gone
To mansions above yonother sky,
To gaze on the beautiful throne
Of Him who is seated on high.
341 Her life was like a half-blown rose,
Closed are the shades of even;
Her death the dawn, the blushing hour,
That open the gates to heaven.

342 She was but a jewel, lent us
To sparkle in our midst awhile,
Then God called, and took His treasure,
Before she knew an earthly guile.

343 Such was her end, a calm release,
No clanging to this mortal clod;
She closed her eyes, and stood in peace
Before a smiling God.

344 Lord, she was Thine, and not mine own,
Thou hast not done me wrong;
I thank Thee for the precious loan
Afforded me so long.

345 Kind angels watch her sleeping dust,
Till Jesus comes to raise the just;
Then may she wake with sweet surprise,
And in her Saviour's image rise.

346 Through days well spent in prayer and praise,
In words and works of love,
God led her feet by pleasant ways
To His blest light above.

347 She's crossed the troubled river
That lies between us and heaven;
To her a robe of whiteness
A golden crown is given.

348 There are thoughts that never perish,
Bright, unfading, through long years;
So thy memory we cherish,
Shrouded in hope, embalmed in tears.

349 The light of her young life went down,
As sinks behind a hill
The glory of a setting star—
Calm, suddenly, and still.

350 She's gone to worlds above,
Where saints and angels meet,
To realize our Saviour's love,
And worship at His feet.

351 "Asleep in Jesus," oh! to see
What my waking form shall be;
To be like Him will be my bliss,
For I shall see Him as He is.

352 Shed not for her the bitter tears,
Nor give the heart to vain regret;
'Tis but the casket that lies here,
The gem that filled it sparkles yet.

353 Weep not for her who meekly led
A life of piety and love,
Whose unsounding virtue shed
A hallowed influence from above.

354 The little leaf that falls
All brown and wither to earth,
Ere long will mingle with the buds
That gave the bloomer birth.

355 A light from our household is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our hearts
That never can be filled.

356 There's a beautiful region above the skies,
And I long to reach its shore,
For I know I shall find my treasure there,
The loved one gone before.

357 Yet why should death be linked with fear?
A single breath, a low-drawn sigh,
Can break the ties that bind us here,
And waft the spirit to the sky.

358 You are not dead to us,
But as a bright star unseen,
We hold that you are ever near,
Though death intrudes between.

359 What though thy couch be kindred dust,
Thy pillow be of clay,
He guards the grave's most sacred trust
Who called thy soul away.

360 Oh, that thy pure angel spirit
Ever may my guardian be,
Till life's fatal hour's over,
And I, like thee, am free.
361 Now my spirit's fled before thee
To the angels' world above,
Sainted still 'till heaven's gate
And encircle thee with love.
362 The pains of death are past,
Labor and sorrow cease,
And life's long warfare closed at last,
His soul is found in peace.
363 Life is a span—a fleeting hour:
How soon the vapor dies!
Man is a tender, transient flower,
That even in blooming dies.
364 There is a bright region above,
We long to reach its shore,
To join with the dear ones we love,
Of lost, but gone before?
365 We can not tell who next may fall
Beneath thy chastening rod,
One must be first, but let us all
Be pure to meet our God.
366 As Jesus died and rose again
Victorious from the dead,
So His disciples rise and reign
With their triumphant head.
367 But is he dead? no, no, he lives!
His happy spirit flies
To heaven's shore, and there receives
The long-expected prize.
368 Its duty done, as sinks the day,
Light from its bow the spirit flies,
While heaven's own clouds combine to say,
"Sweet is the scene when virtue dies."
369 Just as the sun descends at eve,
Soon with fresher beams to rise,
So shall our mother dear receive
Life eternal in the skies.
370 Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul.

371 In love she lived,
In peace she died;
Her life was a crown,
But God denied.
372 Though thou art gone,
And thy fair form
Lies meekly lying in the dust,
Fond memory clings to thee.
373 It is not death to fling
Aside this sinful dust,
And rise on strong, exulting wing
To live among the just.
374 "Ne'er to those mansions where the weary rest,
Since their foundation ceased a woeless guest,
Nor e'er was to the bower of bliss conveyed
A fitter spirit, a more welcome shade."
375 Our God, to call us homeward,
His only Son sent down;
And now, still more to accept us there,
Has taken up our own.
376 There is a world above
Where parring is unknown,
A long eternity of love
Formed for the good alone.
377 The hand of the sinner
Takes the ears that are deaf:
But the voice of the weeper
Wails manhood in glory.
378 A faith that kept the narrow way,
Till life's last hour had fled,
And with a pure and heavenly ray
Lift up her dying head.
379 God's unseen angel o'er our pathway crossed—
Looked on us all; and, loving her the more,
Straightway received her to the heavenly fold.
380 Amiable and beloved father, farewell!—Not on this penitent stage, but in the Book of Life, and in the hearts of thy afflicted friends in thy death recorded.
Slowly fading, lingering, dying,
Like the leaf he passed away;
Heeding not our tears of anguish,
Heaven has claimed its own to-day—
And we weep.

Although he sleeps
His memory deals live,
And cheering comfort
To his mourners give.

He followed virtue
As his trusty guide,
Lived as a Christian—
As a Christian died.

Calm on the bosom of thy God,
Young spirit, and then now!
Even while with my footsteps trod,
His seal was on thy brow.

It matters little at what hour of the day
The righteous fall asleep—death can not
Come to him untimely who is fit to die.

It is not death to close
The eye long dimmed by tears,
And wake in glorious repose
To spend eternal years.

The praise of those who sleep in earth,
The pleasant memory of their worth,
The hope to meet when life is past,
Shall heal the tortured mind at last.

Sustained and soothed
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his coach
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

We look upon the sweetest flower—
'Tis withered soon, and gone;
We gaze upon a star, to find
But darkness where it shone.

Near as we, tho' unseen,
Thy dear immortal spirit trends,
For all the boundless universe
Is life—there are no dead.
